GERMANS NEARING NAVAL BASE

INTENSE FIGHTING FOR ROAD TO STALINGRAD

THE battle for the approaches to Stalingrad has flared up with renewed intensity, and Soviet forces are making a terrific stand north-east of Kotelnikovo, where the Germans are trying to move up the railway to the great steel town. On the Kuban front generally the Soviet forces have been pushed further back, fighting bitter defensive actions as they retire.

The Soviet offensive south of Voronezh continues, and Red Army troops, crossing to the west bank of the Don on a new sector, are continuing to advance.

Vichy radio stated yesterday that German columns were moving on both Tuapse and Novorossisk, their advance units being only some thirty miles from the port and 40 to 50 miles from the naval base.—(Reuter.)

"MASS ATTACKS: MASS LOSSES"

BERLIN, Tuesday.—"In the great Don bend the pocket west of Kalach has been tightened, and represents a picture of wholesale slaughter," said the German News Agency to-night. "Where the enemy is still able to attempt escape across the Don he is being seized by the Luftwaffe. Massed Soviet relief attacks in the area of Rzhev continue, only to collapse against the heroic defence of the German infantry and tank troops. The fighting here is of unprecedented ferocity, the Soviet troops paying for their mass attacks with mass losses."—(Reuter.)

Stukas attacked the harbour of Anapa, on the Black Sea coast, midway between the Novorossisk and the Kerch Strait, in several waves, scoring direct hits on transports preparing to take off troops beaten in the fighting at Krasnodar and Maikop, German Radio claimed to-night. Five laden merchant ships, totalling 4,400 tons, were sunk, and four, totalling 3,600 tons, were set on fire, it was claimed.—(Associated Press.)

"IRRETRIEVABLE"

MOSCOW, Tuesday.—The Times correspondent here says:—"The military situation in the Western Kuban has become irretrievable, and it is now only a question of how dearly the enemy will have to pay for further successes there and how much time the Russian rearguards can save to cover the work of demolition and evacuation. Tanks, lorries and infantry in great strength, escorted by machine-guns mounted on motor-cycles, are being resolutely engaged by Russian divisions that are dishearteningly out-weighted.

"The delaying action in the Armavir sector, though courageously fought, failed to bring the German armoured forces to a standstill, and a huge column of tanks, lorries and self-propelled guns is now advancing along the Caucasian foothills at an alarming speed.

"Grave and far-reaching as are the German successes in Northern Caucasia for the cause of the United Nations, it is probable that the battle for Stalingrad is more momentous, and that Marshal Timoshenko's successful defence of the Lower Volga would more than compensate for the loss of the oilfields of Northern Caucasia."—(Press Association.)

BLACK SEA ACTION

MOSCOW, Tuesday.—A despatch to Red Fleet to-day reported an action in the Black Sea, with naval units supporting marines on shore, in an unidentified sector. The marines successfully repulsed attacks on at least three points, it said. Red Fleet also reported that individual resistance continued at Sebastopol.

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

MOSCOW, Tuesday.—To-night's Soviet communiqué states: "During August 11 our troops fought fierce engagements in the areas of Kletskaya, north-east of Kotelnikovo, Cherkess, Krasnodar and Maikop. No material changes took place on other sectors. In the Kletskaya area desperate German attempts to break through the Soviet lines have been frustrated.

"North-east of Kotelnikovo a great tank battle was fought round the railway station occupied by Soviet troops. The Soviet troops, with tanks and artillery, repeated the attack throughout the day. The enemy is on the defensive in this area.

"In the area of Krasnodar fierce fighting took place with German tanks and motorised infantry, which had broken through Soviet positions. One Soviet unit withdrew to new positions. A German tank group which had also broken through was cut off. Nineteen tanks were destroyed and seven hundred Germans were killed.

"In the areas of Cherkess and Maikop, Soviet troops fought heavy defensive engagements against the attacking enemy forces. South of Voronezh, Soviet forces are maintaining their positions and repelling strong enemy attacks made by the Germans in attempts to recapture the inhabited localities occupied by our troops. In one attack, which was particularly severe, the Germans employed 100 tanks. The attack was repulsed and prisoners were taken.—(Reuter.)

GREAT IRISH ARCHITECT'S PAPERS FOUND

CONTINUING his search for original papers and drawings of the great architects of 18th century Ireland, Mr. John Betjeman has discovered recently a large collection of drawings by

MR. JOHN BETJEMAN.

Thomas Cooley, the architect of the Royal Exchange (now the City Hall), Dublin.

A DISCOVERY

Knowing that Cooley for several years had been architect to Primate Robinson in Armagh, Mr. Betjeman had written to several people in that town, including the librarian of the Robinson Library, asking about Cooley drawings, but without success. On a visit to Armagh he called at the Library and, while looking around the shelves, he found an old volume with the title "Eighteenth Century Churches." Knowing there was no such printed book, he pulled it out and opened it, and found that it consisted of a large number of Cooley drawings, which had been bound together in one volume.

Most of them seemed to be of County Armagh churches, which Cooley, as the official architect to the archdiocese, had built to the orders of that great church-builder, Primate Robinson, in whose time the present Palace was built, the Cathedral restored, and buildings erected at the Royal School. Many of the drawings in the volume are of churches to which names are not attached. With the help of Mr. T. S. F. Patterson, Curator of the Armagh Museum, two of these have been identified as those of Grange, near Armagh, and Lisnadill. An examination of the others should lead to a great extension of our knowledge of the work done by Cooley in Ireland.

ROYAL EXCHANGE

Cooley's first work in this country was the building of the Royal Exchange, for which he won the premium—one of the first examples of an architectural prize on record—in competition with Gandon and others. He seems to have lived in Armagh in the 1770's as architect to the Archbishop, and here had as his pupil Francis Johnston, who later succeeded him as architect to the diocese, but became better known as the designer of the Dublin Post Office and St. George's Church. Cooley died in 1784 while his plan for the new Four Courts building was in progress and it was completed to the design of Gandon.

The last important discovery of architectural drawings in Ireland was made about a year ago when Mr. Betjeman discovered in the archives of the Institute of Architects, in Merrion square, Dublin, a neglected bundle which proved to contain several hundred original Francis Johnston drawings, including those of the Post Office, St. George's Church and the Nelson Pillar.

DEATH SENTENCES

MR. CHURCHILL'S REPLY

Mr. Winston Churchill has refused to intervene in the case of the six Belfast men who have been sentenced to death for the shooting of Constable Patrick Murphy.

Senator T. McLoughlin, Armagh, has received a reply from the British Premier's Secretary to the telegram sent by Northern Nationalist M.P.s, intimating that the matter was not one in which it was possible for Mr. Churchill to intervene.

About 200,000 people have signed the petition for the reprieve of the condemned men. The appeal on their behalf may be heard next week.

The Lord Mayor of Cork (Alderman J. Allen) has received from the Private Secretary to the Duke of Abercorn an acknowledgment of his appeal for clemency in the cases of the six Belfast men under sentence of death, and stating that the matter would receive the careful consideration of the Governor.

Drogheda Corporation passed a resolution asking the Government of Northern Ireland to reprieve the six young men under sentence of death. Messrs. B. E. Allen and W. H. Jordan dissented.

NORTHERN INTERNEES

NUMBERS IN FOUR YEARS

The question of internees in Northern Ireland was again raised in the Northern Senate yesterday, when the Leader of the House, Mr. J. H. Robb, K.C., told Mr. Maguire that in 1939 83 people were interned; in 1940 there were 302 internees; in 1941, 73, and in the seven months of 1942, ending in July, 80. The numbers released during these years were 29, 58, 53 and 21.

Mr. Maguire said that his information was that a large percentage of internees had appealed, and, although they were prepared to sign any undertaking required, a large percentage had been turned down.

Mr. McAllister, suggesting that there was grave dissatisfaction about the appeals, urged that a verbatim report of the proceedings of the Appeals Court should be made available to the members of the House and the public.

Mr. Robb said he would put this suggestion before the Ministry, but he did not think it would be accepted.

FEWER SHIPS LOST

A considerable reduction in shipping losses for the past month, compared with previous months of this year, is disclosed by the provisional estimates of the United States authorities, states Major Arne Sunde, Norwegian Minister of Shipping, in a Norwegian newspaper in London.

STRONG MEASURES AGAINST RIOTERS

"ORDER AT ANY COST," SAYS GOVERNOR

BOMBAY, Tuesday.—A warning that the Government intends to maintain law and order "at any cost" was given by Sir Roger Lumley, Governor of Bombay, in a broadcast to-night, while police and troops were dealing with rioting which broke out in the city for the third day in succession.

"The police and troops," he said, "have orders to take the strongest measures whenever the situation demands."

Thirteen persons were killed and more than 30 wounded in Bombay to-day. The police and troops had to fire more than 10 times in various parts of the city

The day's casualties bring the toll of the city's disturbances since rioting began on Sunday to 31 dead and more than 250 injured. Arrests number upwards of 500.

TROOPS WITH TOMMY GUNS

British troops, armed with Tommy guns, appeared in the disturbed localities to-day. A Bombay Government communiqué stated that they took part in the firing on one or two occasions, but only a few shots were fired each time.

The mobs cut down telephone wires and tied them across the streets in an attempt to interfere with the movements of troops and police. Communications are growing worse owing to the dislocation of suburban railway services.

Crowds placed boulders on the track of the great Indian and Peninsular railway. At the Matuna Station the rioters smashed train indicators, fire hydrants and lamp-posts, and pulled down ticket racks in the booking office.

At Parel a crowd set the benches in front of the King Edward Memorial Hospital on fire.

Work has ceased in the General Motors workshops, Bombay, and in a number of mills. Schools and colleges are picketed, and have been either closed or had very scanty attendances. Except in the Moslem areas, the shops remained closed, and small crowds of demonstrators went round to prevent them from re-opening.

The situation in the labour area grew worse during the day, more mills being affected.

In other parts of India the situation apparently was quieter to-day.

ACTS OF ARSON

NEW DELHI, Wednesday—The following official statement was issued here early this morning:—

"The situation in New Delhi became urgly in the early hours of yesterday morning, owing to the activities of a large crowd of mill-workers. There were acts of arson. The Railway Clearing Accounts Office in Queen's road was gutted and many lakhs of rupee damage was done to the Town Hall, which was practically destroyed by fire. The income tax office was burned down; many pillar boxes were uprooted.

"On frequent occasions the police and military were forced to fire in self-defence. A Moslem sub-inspector of police was murdered by an angry crowd near the Railway Clearing Accounts Office.

"There has been numerous arrests of mill-workers and students.

"The District Magistrate has issued an order imposing a curfew in an area within the municipal limits. An order has also been issued prohibiting the assembly of five or more persons.

"Strong military reinforcements have arrived, and troops are now patrolling the city."—(Reuter.)

OTHER DISTRICTS

Latest Reuter despatches may be summed up as follows:—

AHMEDABAD. — Textile mills have ceased work, and police are patrolling the town.

BIHAR. — Congress committees have now been proclaimed illegal.

PATNA.—A mob of 2,000 people attempted to storm the gates of the Secretariat. After 2½ hours mounted police dispersed them. The police charged twice, but the mob refused to disperse. The district magistrate and police officials ordered Gurkhas to fire one volley of seven shots. The mob became more violent, and another volley of seven shots was ordered. It is understood that about 19 persons were hit. The crowd then dispersed, carrying off all the injured. Five of the injured are reported to have died.

MADURA (Madras Presidency).—Three persons were injured by bullets and four others were arrested when a mob attacked a District Magistrate at Srivilliputtur and police at Rajapalayam. The police had to fire on the mob.

LUCKNOW.—University students raided a sub-post office in Hewett road, and destroyed stamps and postcards.

CAWNPORE.—A curfew is to be enforced to-night in the two areas of Cawnpore affected by rioting. Certain sections of the Penalties Ordinance — which, among other things, provides for punishment with death of offences, including committing mischief by fire or explosive objects—have been enforced in Cawnpore City and cantonments and within a radius of five miles.

WHIPPING ACT

A Bombay Government communiqué to-night stated that the Government has taken further measures to quell the rioting in the city.

An Emergency Whipping Act has been applied, and several hundred police have been drafted into the city from other districts.—(Reuter.)

The communiqué added that rioting continued at scattered points throughout the city. Troops assisted the police in quelling the disturbances, and both they and the police had to fire on several occasions. Up to 5 p.m. (local time) seven persons had been killed and 12 wounded by shots, and 15 more had been injured in other ways. The demonstrators made strenuous efforts to impede traffic by building barricades in the streets. Elsewhere they indulged in stone-throwing attacks on the police and in other rowdyism. Rioting in industrial areas again interfered with normal working in mills and factories.

Casualties in Monday's disturbances were 16 killed and 114 injured.

According to the Associated Press the Director of Information announced to-night that the whipping of rioters had already started and would continue.

"PLAIN WARNING"

In the course of his broadcast to-day the Governor of Bombay (Sir Roger Lumley) said:—

"I cannot allow the distnrbances to continue. The police and troops have orders to take severe measures whenever necessary.

"For three days," he said, "violence has continued in some areas of the city—arson, assault, looting, wrecking of property, stone-throwing and sabotage. They do not cause the Government to deflect one instant from its purpose, but they cause the public a good deal of inconvenience, some alarm, and much annoyance.

"I am going to maintain order at any cost. To those, therefore, who may be considering a continuation of these disturbances, I now give this plain warning—the police and troops have orders to take the strongest measures whenever the situation demands."—(Reuter.)

SOLOMON ISLANDS BATTLE

CONSIDERABLE LOSS EXPECTED BY U.S.

LONDON, Tuesday.—The Japanese to-day continued to boast about the Solomon Islands battle. Admiral Ito, the Japanese naval spokesman, claimed "that the sensational defeat of the Anglo-American Fleet drastically prevented the first Anglo-American attempt to establish a so-called second front against the Axis."—(Associated Press.)

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.—Mr. J. Curtin, Australian Premier, told the conference of Prime Ministers to-day that the special announcement yesterday by Admiral King, U.S. Chief of Naval Operations, indicated that the gains in the Solomon Islands battle so far greatly outweighed the losses.

"Communications are overtaxed, and so there is a delay in receiving news," added the Australian Premier. "Admiral King has warned us that the capture of the Solomons is no cheap or easy task. Considerable losses must be expected.

"We are holding our ground, although the enemy is counter-attacking vigorously."

IN PAPUA

Allied troops at Kokoda, between Japanese-occupied Gona and the Allied base at Port Moresby, have forced the Japanese to withdraw, says Reuter. "The Japanese troops at Kokoda were engaged by the strongest Allied force which has yet been in action in the area. This is regarded as an indication that reinforcements have arrived."

"A large formation of Allied medium bombers attacked two Japanese merchant vessels anchored off Beco, on the south-west coast of Timor. It is considered that both ships—one was about 4,000 tons, and the other 1,500 tons—were sunk. All the Allied 'planes returned safely."

LANDING REHEARSED

WASHINGTON, Tuesday. — The United States Navy Department to-day issued a statement detailing preparations for the landing of United States Marines in the Solomon Islands. The statement said that Marines held invasion rehearsals day and night as a prelude to the attack, adding: "Now, to-day, in hand-to-hand combat with the Japanese in the Solomon Islands, in close co-operation with other Allied forces, the Marines have opened the door to the Allied offensive in the South Pacific."

The statement gave no information on the progress of the present operations.—(The Associated Press.)

ATTACK ON KISKA

WASHINGTON, Tuesday. — A U.S. Navy Department communiqué states:—"North Pacific area.—Information received by the Navy Department now makes it possible to report the following incident in the Aleutian Islands:—On July 22 Army bombers dropped bombs through fog in the area of Kiska Harbour The results were not observed."

The communiqué details four other attacks on Kiska, and adds:—"On August 9 Navy patrol 'planes followed up the bombardment by an attack on two cargo ships in Kiska harbour. Two bomb hits were scored on each of the two ships, resulting in severe damage. On this flight observers reported sighting sunken cargo ships, believed sunk near the beach in the previous day's bombardment by surface forces.

"South Pacific Area.—While action in the Tulagi area of the Solomon Islands continues, nothing further can be reported at this moment."—(Reuter.)

U.S. COURT-MARTIAL

When the American courtmartial—first to be held in Britain—was resumed yesterday the defending officer alleged that a statement made by the accused man had been obtained under duress. The Court was closed while the objection was considered. When it was re-opened the alleged statement was admitted as evidence. Before the Court is 25 years old Travis P. Hammond, United States private, from Kelpys, Texas, who pleads not guilty to an offence against a girl stated to be sixteen.

ENGLISH JUDGE MISSING

SON OF KILKENNY MAN

MR. JUSTICE LANGTON, one of the English High Court Judges—an Irishman—has been missing since Sunday last from the house where he had been staying at Burnham-on-Sea, Somerset, and may, it is feared, have met with a fatal accident.

Sir George Philip Langton, O.B.E., who is sixty years of age, the son of F. R. Langton, of Danganmore, Kilkenny, married in 1919 the daughter of D. F. Leahy, J.P., D.L., of Shanakill, Cork.

The family solicitor said in a statement to the Press Association yesterday:—"Great anxiety is felt. The Judge, who was in his usual good health and spirits, has been staying near Burnham since the end of the legal term. On Sunday he went alone for a walk by the sea. He did not return, and no trace of him can be found, although intensive search has been made." Home Guards and Civil Defence workers joined police in the search, which has covered a wide area of the countryside.

LAST MESSAGE HOME

Mr. Justice Langton left London last Tuesday for a holiday at Hays, Brent Knoll, the home of a friend, Mrs. Hunter. Yesterday it was stated that two messages from Burnham were received at his London home, Draycott Place, Chelsea, on Sunday. The first was from Sir George himself, when he telephoned to Lady Langton in the morning, saying that he would be returning to London on Monday morning on business. The second—in the evening—was a message from Brent Knoll, saying that Sir George had been taken ill. Lady Langton and her daughter left London for Burnham immediately. "We have heard nothing further since then," it was stated at Draycott Place.

From Burnham it is stated that a man resembling the Judge was seen near Brent Knoll, which is about two miles from the coast, on Sunday. Sir George has been a Judge of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the High Court since 1930. He is one of the few Catholics to be raised to high judicial office, and one of the best linguists on the Bench. He served in the last war, and was Garrison Adjutant in 1915 at Queenstown Harbour.

SCHOOL PROBLEM

2d. EXERCISE BOOK MAY GO

The twopenny exercise book will probably disappear from Irish school desks in the immediate future owing to the shortage of paper. The position with regard to stationery for educational purposes is much more serious than in relation to textbooks, as the demand for exercises runs into many hundreds of thousands annually, whereas the school book lasts the child the whole year.

"Up to the moment we are not too badly affected, but, of course, the future is uncertain," said Mr. Allan Nolan, of Messrs. Browne and Nolan, Ltd. "We have diverted all our paper stocks to educational purposes, and we are not issuing any new books." Cheap writing paper and printing paper was extremely difficult to obtain, and he hoped that his firm would obtain allocations of any supplies which became available.

A member of the staff of a publishing firm also described the position as very serious. "We are put to the pin of our collar," he said, "and the future position is causing us a great deal of concern, being bound up completely in the production capacity of the Irish paper mills."

Present stocks were sufficient to cater for the needs of the Irish schools during the coming educational year, purchases for which would be completed about the end of October. "The school year for 1943 will bring the problem to its most critical stage," said this informant.

NEXT WEDNESDAY'S ELECTIONS

PARTIES AND PROMISES

Elaborate promises are being made as party and private candidates prepare for the local elections, to be held next Wednesday—Ireland's first non-political poll.

In Dublin thirty-five seats are sought by 111 candidates. At present Fine Gael have a majority of one seat in the Dublin Corporation over the dozen held by Fianna Fail. Labour are represented by three, and there are seven Independents. For the new Corporation the two principal parties have nominated 23 candidates each; Labour have put forward 24, and Republicans and Independents are also represented.

Fine Gael submit that their return will mean the clearance of the slums, adequate provision of houses, special transport facilities for workers, and sanatorium treatment for tuberculosis.

Fianna Fail point out that their candidates seek election so that they "can help the Government to carry out its policy in war and peace." They promise that the protection of the people from privation caused by scarcity of foodstuffs will receive their attention.

Municipal control and ownership of gas, fuel and transport; an extension of medical services, and free mid-day meals and books for schoolchildren are visualised by the Republican Party (Coras na Pioblachta).

Should Labour be returned in force they intend to introduce community halls in each housing area, new libraries, hot school meals, effective treatment of T.B., and many other amenities.

Forty candidates—ten Fine Gael, eight Fianna Fail, four Labour, three Republicans and fifteen Independents—have been nominated for the fifteen seats in Dun Laoghaire Borough Corporation. One of the most ambitious promises is made by Fine Gael, who intend to "keep politics out of the Council Chamber."

WAR ACTIVITY IN EGYPT

LONDON, Tuesday.—Allied aircraft are daily attacking Axis lines of communications and concentrations in Egypt, says the Cairo communiqué. Successful attacks were also made on Axis supplies along the Mediterranean coast. A lighter was sunk and another damaged.

Berlin to-day claimed that eight Allied 'planes were shot down by German fighters. British armoured forces which attempted to approach the Axis lines were repulsed, said Rome.

The German News Agency to-day claimed that Colonel Angus Rimington, a British Army tank expert, had been captured by a U-boat. He was taken aboard with other survivors from a cargo boat belonging to an Anglo-American convoy, it was stated.—(Reuter.)

HELP THE COLLECTORS

HAVE YOUR WASTE PAPER READY

"HAVE your paper ready," is the motto of the new collecting company, Waste Paper, Ltd., whose formation was announced by Mr. Lemass, Minister for Supplies, in a broadcast. The newly-appointed manager of the company, Mr. R. P. Williams, told an Irish Times reporter yesterday that the whole success of the new company depended on the willingness of the public to co-operate by having their waste paper ready for the company's collectors when they called. He and the secretary of the new company, Mr. R. Buchanan, had already been out on several days with their collectors, and found that it was quite a common thing for householders to take about 15 minutes before they had gathered up, perhaps, half-a-stone of waste paper for the collectors. Collection at that rate meant two stone per hour, not counting the length of time taken between the houses or going to and coming from the depôt. On this basis the collection of waste paper could never be an economic proposition. He urged on householders, therefore, to have their waste paper, cardboard, old books, etc., ready to hand out at a few moments' notice.

The Right Way.

SIX DEPOTS

Though the company was registered only about a week ago, its plans are well advanced. It has secured six dépôts and is on the look-out for at least another dozen. The ones already secured are at key points in the city—North Circular road, Fairview, Drumcondra, Harold's Cross road, Ballsbridge and Rathmines.

About twenty youths, whose age average is about 20, are employed by the company on a wage plus commission basis, and the number will be increased as the work of collection becomes better organised. It has been reckoned that there are 81,000 houses in the city, and it is intended to call on these at least once a month. The paper will be put on hand-carts or other small vehicles and taken to the suburban dépôts, whence it will be taken on lorries or drays to the waste-paper merchants for sorting.

The Wrong Way.

RECEIPTS

A householder who gives waste-paper to the collectors will be given an official receipt, payment being at the rate of 6d. per stone. The householder may either have these receipts cashed himself or given to a charitable organisation.

The directors of the new company are Mr. Louis O'Reilly (chairman), Miss N. Duan, Mr. H. E. Crean, Mr. P. O'Hagan, Mr. E. Marcus, Miss Maloney, Mr. W. L. Woolfson, and Mr. J. R. Bailey. The secretary is Mr. R. Buchanan, M.A., B.Comm., accountant, who has for some time been secretary of the Waste Paper Merchants' Association, and the manager, Mr. R. P. Williams, as organiser for Ireland of the Catholic Boy Scouts, has had extensive experience in that capacity during the last two years of organising the collection of waste paper. All the directors are connected with Dublin waste-collecting firms, which will continue to collect from their usual clients without any over-lapping by the new company.

A statement issued jointly yesterday by the Irish Red Cross Society, Legion of Mary, St. John Ambulance Brigade, and St. Vincent de Paul Society, states that these organisations, having considered the matter fully in conference with the new company, have agreed to cease within the Dublin city boundaries only, any arrangements they have had in operation for the collection of waste paper from householders.

"The new company," the statement continues, "has undertaken to accept waste paper from householders who may wish to have the value of such collection credited to any of our organisations, and such householders will receive a receipt from the company indicating to which organisation the value will be credited."

18 KILLED IN RAIDS

FIRING OF CORNFIELDS

After a night of rescue work at a bomb-wrecked building in an East Anglian district, search was continued yesterday for persons believed to be trapped in the ruins. It was feared last night that the death roll would be heavy. Up to that time 12 bodies had been recovered.

The raid presumably was made with the object of firing cornfields. Loads of incendiaries were showered on fields in rural areas, but little damage was done.

Three people were slightly injured and houses and shops were damaged when a German 'plane dropped bombs in a South of England town yesterday afternoon.

Six people were killed and many injured when a south-east coast town of England was bombed last night by German raiders. Although the raid was of short duration, houses in many parts were demolished. Several families were trapped, but were later rescued. The raiders, which, it is believed, totalled eight, flew low and used machine-guns.

Indigestion & FLATULENCE AFTER MEALS

The reason why you get that burning pain and distressing wind after meals is because your stomach is always too acid. It sours everything you eat. Food simply can't digest and your stomach is tortured in the attempt.

Why endure this mealtime misery when 'Milk of Magnesia Tablets will stop it this very day? They relieve acidity and sweeten a sour stomach at once. The stomach starts digesting your food right away and finishes its work with perfect ease. You feel nothing—no heartburn, no flatulence, not a twinge of your old stomach pain.

If you suffer from acute attacks of gastric pain 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets will stop them in five minutes. Try them to-day!

Neat flat boxes for the pocket, 6d. and 1/-. Also family sizes, 2/- and 3/6 everywhere.

THE PHŒNIX'S BREEDING

SIRE of The Phœnix, winner of the "Fifteen Hundred" on Saturday last, was Château Bouscaut, which won the French Derby for Comte de Rivaud in 1930 and the Prix du Cadran in 1931. Château Bouscaut was probably the best stayer in France in 1931, at the close of which year he went to the stud. He was by Kircubbin, out of Ramondie by Neil Gow.

The Phœnix's mare, Fille de Poète, recently bought by Mr. C. Rogers for Miss Paget, is by the 1932 St. Leger winner Firdaussi, out of Fille d'Amour.

Firdaussi was owned by the Aga Khan, whose Dastur ran second in the same St. Leger. Recently (writes our Curragh correspondent), some cross-Channel newspapers stated that Dastur was in America. This great racehorse and sire still stands at Old Connell Stud, Newbridge, Co. Kildare (by kind permission of Lt.-Col. Giles Loder), with those others of the Aga Khan's stallions, Turkhan and Stardust.

Clarence, the dam of Sun Chariot, had a February foal by Dastur, and this National Stud youngster is most promising.

Commenting on the popularity of the success of The Phœnix last Saturday, our Racing Correspondent states that the extent of the cheering suggested that the public appreciate a really good horse, which unquestionably, The Phœnix is. He bids fair to go on to emulate the achievement of Windsor Slipper in keeping up an unbeaten record. His next appearance will be in the Railway Stakes at the Curragh September meeting, a race in which Mrs. Swan Song is not engaged.

The Phœnix is a better looking two-year-old than was Windsor Slipper. Mere looks are not sufficient to make the classic racehorse, but obviously The Phœnix has also the something else that is so necessary. No doubt, he will be the favourite for next season's Irish classic contests. There is no reason to question his stamina, and he ran his races like a potential stayer.

A considerable number of Curragh horses are under orders for Tramore this week-end, and these will be well worth following throughout the two days on the seaside course, says our Curragh Correspondent.

Colonel Blake Heath, Maryborough, trainer, has suffered a loss by the death of his three-year-old chestnut colt Winter Berg. By the home stallion Solenoid, from Frigid Zone, Winter Berg had always run in the best class and very prominently. Last time of running, in the Maddenstown Plate at the July meeting here, he was close up third to Sammy's Rock and Buffalo Bill.

Newmarket Card

EPSOM stables will be better represented at Newmarket to-day, and their smart two-year-old, First Edition, should win the Wicken Stakes. Winner of four races and runner-up in the other two, First Edition is regarded by many as the best two-year-old in training, and Sulphurous paid tribute to his merit by his victory over Tipstaff last week. First Edition cleverly beat Sulphurous, who was receiving 12lb. at Salisbury last month. Molly Maureen, moving lately with something like the dash shown when she won early in the season, may prove First Edition's most serious rival.

DUBLIN'S WEAKNESS IS IN ATTACK

BY PAT'O.

DUBLIN footballers are already in training for their All-Ireland final against Galway. Dublin had two close calls on the way to the final and gave their best performance (against Cavan) in the semi-final. Like Galway, the Liffey men reached their brightest in the second half. Both counties fumbled the ball a lot in the first session; they gathered strength and polish as the hour sped. For this reason I expect a good final.

Dublin have the bigger proportion of moderate footballers. With two changes in attack, Galway are the most uniform team of many years. Stoutly built, fast and resolute, the Connaught champions astonished us all by their speed and resolution in the second half against Kerry, who had too many passengers for collective strength.

No one could call Dublin a classic side, and some are wondering how they got so far. They have team-spirit in plenty and know every blade of grass at Croke Park. Dublin's weakness is in attack. Good forwards are rare, and wild shooting is the biggest fault in current football. The county that can train the cool, accurate marksmen between now and September will win the final.

Kerry did not shine in the second half last Sunday. Switching new players about, as served to demoralise them, though such tactics often won for Kerry in the past. It was only the steadfast work of Keohane, Myers, Healy and D. Walsh that saved Kerry from a heavier defeat. Galway were a transformed team on resumption; they looked and proved a beautifully trained side. Patient, pains-taking instruction in training and a strong trial game meanwhile, will give Dublin a sound sporting chance of drawing level with Kerry—15 titles won.

In view of their hurling final against Cork, keen interest surrounds next Sunday's Dublin League final between Army and Faughs. The best hurling of the year developed when these teams met in the Arms final last Spring, and recent outings have kept the players fit. Places in Dublin's All-Ireland side are still open, and candidates will be all out under the eyes of the selectors. The Cork County final (Glen Rovers-St. Finbarrs) is postponed until after Cork's clash with Dublin.

URGENCY OF YOUTH PROBLEM

WORK FOR MUINTIR NA TIRE

The delegates to Muintir na Tire's National Rural Week, at Mungret College, Limerick, heard yesterday a lecture on "The Parish and Education," by Prof. Liam O Buachalla, U.C.G., in which he said that not the least of the factors tending to damp the spirit of youth, as well as tending to retard economic progress, was that so many young people had come to realise that, owing to trade and industrial regulations, they had no hope of learning, or being allowed to follow, a trade or skilled occupation. A solution of a considerable part of the youth problem would depend on the extent to which they were enabled to obtain training to fit them for different trades and industries, including agriculture.

Prof. O Buachalla urged the need for bright and properly-equipped schools, and said that where neglect on this matter had persisted school efficiency had suffered. Rural schools were the main source of this problem, and, if the parish was going to fail in its obvious duty to contribute to the erection and maintenance of its schools, centralisation or nationalisation must come. He appealed to Muintir na Tire to take up this aspect.

RURAL EMIGRATION

The problem of youth was divided into two categories—the body of youth which has not had an opportunity of employment for a considerable time after leaving school and the indifference towards national ideals shown by a considerable body of youth in general. The first problem was mainly peculiar to large industrial towns, and was aggravated to some extent by rural emigration. The Minister for Education had given considerable attention to the matter, and was on the threshold of an experimental scheme which, he hoped, would meet with every success. The difficulty in Ireland of the unemployed youth was one of a particularly urban nature, though, in a limited degree, it was met in rural areas. Partial unemployment was a feature of rural Ireland, and students of the problem agreed that much of it was due to the failure to exploit in the best manner the resources to hand. That failure was not due, as a rule, to laziness of the people, but to a peculiar lack of initiative and ambition, which in turn he believed were due to lack of higher technical education and training.

The lecturer stressed the advisability of possible organisation of youth guilds, and the provision of short courses for the agriculturists to which, he said, many secondary schools and agricultural colleges lent themselves admirably, and, referring to the lack of higher national sentiments in the youth, Prof. O Buachalla said that he doubted very much whether the public attitude, to some matters of domestic moment, of people claiming to be responsible leaders of opinion, aided by Press campaigns, an attitude of an obviously unfair nature, had not tended to stifle much of the sincere respect for ideals and things national and cultural which the youth normally would be expected to cherish. A very important task for Muintir na Tire was that of leading and inspiring the people, old and young, to appreciate their higher political and national responsibilities, to teach them to despise the obvious rant and rackets of scheming agitators, whether individuals or Press, or both.

The discussion was taken up by Rev. Fr. Fergus, O.F.M.; Mr. W. J. Hans, Rev. Dr. Cowper, D.D., and Mr. D. Doyle.

AFFORESTATION

The Rev. Dr. Hamilton Irwin, Presbyterian Minister, Lucan, presided at the morning conference, when the subject was Agriculture, and a wide range of topics was dealt with, with particular attention to afforestation.

Several speakers expressed the view that the planting of trees on land that could be used for other purposes was uneconomic.

The Rev. B. Kromer, Rockwell College, stated that, for an initial expenditure of £25, an acre of spruce would yield timber to the value of £800 in forty years.

Dr. Kerrigan advocated the French system, whereby a tree was planted for every girl born and formed part of her dowry twenty years later.

The Chairman stated that the present system of re-afforestation was inadequate, and, at the present rate of progress, unless the Department changed its policy, they would not have re-afforestation in a thousand years.

Dealing with the question of market fluctuation, the Rev. Father O'Donnell, Leitrim, advocated the setting up of a controller, who would need very efficient co-operation and sympathy, and whose work would be to provide against over-production, on the one hand, which tended to lower prices, and under-production, which made commodities dear. A study of that kind, applied to animals and cereals, would eliminate the slump.

An Taoiseach will visit Mungret on Friday, and Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, has also promised to attend.

BACON SCARCITY

DONEGAL WANTS INQUIRY

Criticism of Donegal's bacon shortage was made at the Donegal Committee of Agriculture yesterday, when the Mayo resolution was adopted demanding a searching inquiry into the Government's agriculture policy.

The Chairman (Mr. J. P. McIvor) said there was certainly something wrong when they went into a shop and could not get a pound of bacon. It seemed very strange recently that, instead of increasing the price of pork, the Government gave a bounty on sending potatoes to the alcohol factory to encourage people to send all their potatoes there.

Mr. Lowry said there should be some inquiry into the phenomenal scarcity of pigs.

Mr. J. McElwaine said that for some time production of pigs was definitely discouraged, and the result was being shown now.

Mr. E. McGettigan said they should ask for the resignation of the Pigs Marketing Board.

POTATO CROP OUTLOOK

This year's potato crop, so far surprisingly free from disease, is now facing a period during which danger of blight is at its height. Whether it escapes or not during the coming vital weeks depends on two factors—the weather, and whether farmers spray their vegetables. Should it remain free, a fairly satisfactory yield is expected.

A month ago an Irish Times reporter learned, prospects for the year were extremely bad. But the weather rallied, and so did the potato crop, to such an extent that the final result should be far better than was anticipated originally. It will not be so good as last year, when exceptionally fine weather produced a very good crop. In a way, however, this is an advantage, for last year the surplus was so great that it created an embarrassment on the market, and many of the old potatoes were still on sale when the new ones were available.

Already the first and second early crops have been dug, and have been found satisfactory. The fate of the final crop is still in the balance.

KEMP IN FINE FORM AT BRAY

Giving one of his most convincing displays, C. A. Kemp, the Irish champion, beat J. McHale, for the loss of four games in the semi-final of the championships at Bray yesterday. Under blustery conditions, Kemp's control was almost perfect, and, by constant attack, getting in to the net at the earliest moment, he never gave his opponent a chance.

McHale, who gave Kemp a very hard game in the semi-final at Fitzwilliam, did not play badly, but on yesterday's form Kemp was unbeatable. Another notable effort in the men's singles was that of S. C. Robb in defeating P. Read. Read had won in the semi-final at Lansdowne a few weeks ago, but Robb had a complete revenge this time, for he was so much the more accurate in the breeze that he won the first set comfortably, and staved off a recovery by Read in the second set.

The longest battle of the day was in the women's singles, in which Mrs. P. J. Egan retired to Mrs. E. G. Lister with the score at 10-all in the final set. Mrs. Egan, who sometimes far over on her doubles than singles, showed capital form, and made a great recovery from 1-4 in the final set, and there was nothing between them in a hard-driving battle.

COMPULSORY ORDER

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, in the High Court yesterday, gave judgment, with costs, in favour of Messrs. Hendron Brothers, Upper Dominick street, Dublin, in their action against Dublin Corporation seeking to quash the Denmark street and Moore street area compulsory order in so far as it affected their property. They said that they had bought property in Denmark street in October, 1936, and could not obtain alternative accommodation.

£100 AND TWO MONTHS

SALE OF CIGARETTES

Israel Cohen, furniture dealer, 31 Upper Liffey street, Dublin, was fined £100 and sentenced to two month's imprisonment by District Justice Lennon in Dublin yesterday.

The sentence was for selling cigarettes over the controlled prices, and the fines were: £50 for selling tobacco without an excise licence, £20 for failing to give a receipt for cigarettes and matches, £5 for trading as Thomas Cooney, which was not his proper surname, and which was not registered, and £25 for offering the cigarettes for sale.

Forfeiture of the entire stock of cigarettes was ordered.

Notice of appeal was given, and bail allowed pending the appeal.

REFUSED RECEIPT

Miss Mary Scully, 11 Wexford street, said she replied to an advertisement in June, and, receiving an answer from Mr. Cohen, called at his place on June 12. He offered her 1,000 cigarettes for £3 19s. 2d., which would work out at 1s. 7d. for 20, and she bought them at that price, and also a half-gross of matches for 9s. 6d. She asked for a receipt, but Cohen refused to give one, and also refused to take her cheque. She paid in cash.

Cross-examined by Mr. J. J. Devlin (instructed by Mr. R. J. Muldowney), for the defendant, she said that Cohen had written the price paid in blue pencil on the outside of the parcel. She intended to re-sell the articles at the correct retail price.

Sergeant M. Farrell said that, seeing Miss Scully leave Cohen's premises with a parcel, he brought her back to the shop and there she told him, in Cohen's presence, what she had bought and paid. Cohen denied selling at the price stated, but admitted that writing on the outside of the parcel was his. On the premises there were found, on a later visit, 500 gross of matches, value £450; cigarettes of various brands, value £682 14s. Od.; 199lb. of tobacco, value £199 15s. Od., the total value being £1,332 9s. Od. The shop was a furniture shop, but had previously been a tobacconist's.

In a statement made on June 16th, Cohen said that his sisters had cut-price shops in Lower Liffey street and North Earl street. He had bought the necessary stocks from wholesalers, as his sisters could not buy direct from the manufacturers. The large stock had been bought by him, as he realised he could not lose on such a deal. He had advertised, giving a box number, and offering cigarettes for sale.

"NO TEA TO OFFER"

Sergeant Farrell said that he found on the premises replies to the advertisements one from Navan, regretting that the writer had no tea to offer in exchange for cigarettes. Other letters from Leix and Tipperary expressed similar regrets. On the back of the Tipperary letter, writing which he believed to be Cohen's, stated: "Sorry, no business, as I need tea very badly. I would be content with five or ten lbs."

Cohen, in evidence, said he did not give a receipt to Miss Scully because he had met her with an accident the previous day, and found difficulty in writing. He wanted to provide a dowry for one of his sisters to enable her to

PARISH BY PARISH
I.T.A. SURVEY

The Irish Tourist Association is conducting a nation-wide survey of twenty-six county holiday resorts, to provide post-war tourists from all over the world with up-to-the-minute information of every aspect of Ireland's holiday life. The investigation, which has already begun, is in the hands of thirty-three officers specially appointed by the association, and will keep them occupied continuously for many months.

They are taking the country parish by parish, and have already analysed the resources of well over a hundred. When their job is done they will have presented a cross-section of a thousand resorts in completely revised travel publications, many of which will be prepared exclusively for other countries.

No feature of any one of the thousand parishes will be left unmentioned. Details of the topography of the district, of the antiquities to be found there, of the sporting facilities, of the accommodation, of the geological conditions, of historic sites, and historic houses, of spas, customs, amusements, public services, and curiosities, all will be filed in full. Church Services, postal and banking facilities, fairs, markets and garages will all be listed. The information is being gleaned in co-operation with local archæological societies, boards, and sports clubs. The object of the association is to be in a position to answer the inquiries of tourists from all over the world—no matter how extraordinary is their query.

They hope, too, to be in a position to provide foreign travel agencies with information, and also Irish Consulates across the seas.

The investigators are concentrating first upon the coastal districts, while the weather is comparatively good. Among the districts which they have completed are parts of Connemara, Wicklow, Kerry, Cork and Donegal. They have not as yet completed any one county. In addition to obtaining a factual record, each man is an expert photographer, and will provide, also, a pictorial record. So far as is known this is the first time that a project such as this has been attempted anywhere in the world.

USEFUL YEAR BOOK

Despite the vast political changes wrought by war during the past twelve months, "The Statesman's Year-Book" for 1942 once again presents us with its usual accurate political picture of the world from Tibet to Patagonia as it was at the time of publication. Though much of the information it contains about the military strength and trade of the various countries relates to the pre-war period, nevertheless, the important constitutional changes brought about in many countries through military operations are all noted.

The account given of Eire is very much along the same lines as in previous editions, except that it contains a short note of the Central Bank Bill, whose text was issued in March of this year. Perhaps the new feature which is of widest interest, however, is a long note about recent changes in France, setting out what has been done by Marshal Pétain's Government in the sphere of religion, education and social welfare. The edition also contains a very useful coloured map of the principal naval bases in the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

"Bootleggers" a la Mode

The fate of the "noble experiment" has become a matter of history. Prohibition was foisted upon America by the votes of a majority of States, but certainly not by the will of a majority of the American people; and its results were lamentable. Sober students of the period, as well as the cynics, have reckoned that, during those twelve years of prohibition, there were more drinkers—and more drunkards—in the United States than at any previous time; and they have explained this phenomenon by the fact that the illegality of drinking had cast a false glamour over the act. The "bootlegger" became a national hero and a national benefactor. By contrast with him, the agents of the law were contemptible; they were nothing more or less than people to be outwitted; even decent, properly-living, law-abiding citizens took the "bootlegger's" part against them, applauded his evasions of justice, sheltered him—and drank to excess what he procured, in open defiance of the ill-fated Eighteenth Amendment of George Washington's Constitution. It begins to look as if a somewhat similar condition of affairs has begun to exist in this island of our own. The operator of the "black market" has taken the place of the American "bootlegger" of ten to twenty years ago. He has not been invested, it is true, with any false glamour; he has not been, and never will be, the hero of a film; we doubt, for that matter, if he ever will become so generally popular as his American prototype was. Nevertheless, he enjoys a great deal too much support from too large a section of the Irish public. His customers do not receive him in their houses; they do worse—they allow themselves to be received by him in his shop, or warehouse, or exchange dépôt, or whatever it is; they look upon him, not as what he is, a national enemy, but as a personal benefactor.

There is this great difference between the American "bootlegger" of yesterday and the Irish "black marketeer" of to-day. The one country was at peace; this other is, if not at war, the victim of conditions that approximate very closely to those of war. The one criminal was foisted upon a nation by a law that, in effect, was neither necessary nor desired; the other is the offspring of circumstances which involve the life or death of a whole community. In the old days this newspaper condemned many of the methods which were employed by the agents of the United States Government to obtain evidence against infringements of the Eighteenth Amendment. We shall lend every support to all methods that may be employed to cope with the black market in the Ireland of 1942, 1943, and as many succeeding years as may be necessary. Yesterday morning's Press announced the creation of a new section of the Department of Supplies—a section of "secret agents," whose task will be to trace, reveal and destroy the black market by all means within its power, consistent with the law. We regret to admit our fear that it will not enjoy the full co-operation of the public; there are, unhappily, too many citizens of this country who offer lip-service to the national necessity, but spare no pains to make life easier and more enjoyable for themselves, even to the detriment of the nation at large. These people are nothing more or less than traitors—a term that we prefer to "saboteurs," "fifth-columnists," or whatever the current phrase may be. They are worse than the actual operators of the black market, who could not exist without their support; and it is upon them that we should prefer to see the law direct its rigours. Yet we regard this new venture of the Department of Supplies as a step in the right direction. It may not bring the worst culprits to book, but it will help to reduce a dangerous and treasonable commerce, whose only result can be to foment discontent within this country, and to foster a spirit of lawlessness that must be suppressed if the nation is to survive these perilous years.

The White Collar

A reader of The Times newspaper had an unhappy experience with regard to white collars. It appears that he was one of the "white-collar workers" who are expected to put in an appearance at the office every day in a clean white stiff collar. He had, for this purpose, twenty-eight collars—for his laundry, as an economy measure, collects and delivers only once a fortnight. In one fortnight recently he had a short holiday, and, therefore, wore only ten white collars, which were duly sent to the laundry. There was a fire, and his ten white collars went up in smoke. The laundry offered to replace the collars, if he would send them the necessary coupons, and he was advised to make an application for supplementary coupons in view of his loss. The Collector of Customs and Excise, however, who has charge of such applications, took the view that, as he still possessed eighteen white collars, the request must be refused. The reader points out that he is, therefore, compelled to make his eighteen collars last over twenty-four days or to go for six days every month without a collar at all. He suggests that it may be the intention of the Government to encourage the latter course. A "collarless day" for the nation would result in a great saving of laundering materials, as well as a saving in wear and tear of clothes. The only objection to such a scheme appears to be its moderation. If the stiff collar is to go, let it go altogether, not slip from the grasping fingers of the civil servants little by little. A collar is a band of iron designed to cut off the head from the heart. It is a sly throat-cutter, a cunning garrotter. There is no virtue in a collar. It is retained by the Government offices and the "old-established firms" as an insurance of respectability, to curb the individual and restrain the revolutionary. It is used to break the spirit of youth like a horse's bit. Perhaps, if the white collar is cast aside once and for all, by the highest as well as the lowest, the minister as well as the mechanic, half the troubles of the world will be solved. The collar is the symbol of class warfare. Once it is shed, the great man and his gardener are on the same ground, and will work better together. A man in a collar can never understand a man in a scarf; let them both wear scarves, and all is harmony at once. The capitalist and the proletarian are dissolved together into the collarless man. If it is, indeed, the intention of the British Government to foster dress reform, one must hope that a beginning will be made by Mr. Anthony Eden. Let that immaculate gentleman once appear in the House of Commons wearing a scarf, and no man in England will feel it a disgrace to imitate such an unquestionable example. We omit, of course, to mention a somewhat revolutionary solution which must have crossed the mind of many readers. In other countries than Great Britain, in other circles than the City of London, men have been known to wear a collar for more days than one.

CHRISTMAS CRACKERS

War or no war, Dublin shops will have plenty of crackers and artificial mistletoe next Christmas. An Irish Times reporter, inquiring yesterday about the recent Order suspending duties on imported crackers, learnt that, since the beginning of the war, supplies of these novelties are reaching this country every month. A recent fire in one of the importing factories may cause a slight scarcity in the dearer variety, but there will be adequate supplies of home-manufactured crackers.

MORE PLAYS IN IRISH
GEORGE SHIELS' WORKS

A name new to plays in the Irish language will appear shortly as that of the author of about half a dozen plays to be published by "An Gum." The name is Seoirse O Siadhail, and the list of plays will probably be headed by one with some such title as "An Casan Garbh." Those who know Irish, however, will recognise the author as George Shiels, and the plays as those familiar under their English titles as "The Rugged Path," "The Passing Day," "The Jailbird," "Professor Tim," and a number of others. Mr. Shiels has given permission for the translation of the plays, and this work is now under way. Though a considerable amount of time may elapse before the plays are printed in book form, it is likely that some of them may be produced in Dublin before that date.

Mr. Shiels is very pleased at the selection of his plays for translation, and hopes that they will be useful to dramatic societies which wish to present plays in Irish. Though Dubliners know only of his plays through Abbey Theatre presentations these works have been the mainstay of the parish dramatic societies, not only in Ulster, but all over Ireland.

This translation of the Shiels plays into Irish is only one part of a movement at present on foot to put greater life into the Irish language dramatic movement. Though plays have been done in Irish since the early days of the Gaelic League, many of the plays selected for production have either been plays like those of Dr. Douglas Hyde, written by authors who were not professional dramatists or else translations of Continental plays. Among the few notable Anglo-Irish plays translated have been Lennox Robinson's "The White-headed Boy," translated by Seosamh MacGrianna; Synge's "Deirdre," translated by Liam O Briain; O'Casey's "Shadow of a Gunman," and several of Lady Gregory's short plays. Very few, however, of the Abbey Theatre successes of the last ten years have been translated.

Mr. Ernest Blythe, manager of the Abbey Theatre, who is also very much interested in the production of Irish plays, said that he thought that the large number of Continental translations produced in the Gaelic Theatre had been an influence working against the building up of a good acting tradition. The setting of a high standard of acting was one of the first tasks to be faced in any attempt to put new life into the Gaelic Theatre movement, and that task would be much easier if actors were appearing in plays whose characters and settings were of a sort familiar to them. The Shiels plays would fall into this category, and would be much more suitable for production in Irish than translations of Continental comedies, American gangster pieces, or of London West End plays.

In connection with the attempts being made to give Gaelic plays a better production than they have had heretofore, it is interesting to note that a number of the young actors well known in Dublin through their English language performances are also good Irish speakers. These include Cyril Cusack, Liam Redmond, and Brid Ni Loinghsigh.

TREE FELLING

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Some years since an Act was passed by one of Mr. Cosgrave's Governments requiring landowners to obtain a permit before felling even a single tree on their land. The reason presumably was (1) timber felling by occupiers of land under one of the Land Acts who had not completed purchase; (2) wholesale felling of woods during the last war by owners who by this Act had to undertake to replant.

But this Act, as administered now, seems applicable to freeholders, who are required to obtain a permit before felling even an ornamental tree. Moreover, there is no definition of a tree in the Act itself. In fact, anyone planting a tree and deciding a few years later to take it down is liable for prosecution should he not first get a permit from the local civic guard, who presumably advises the authorities concerned. The owner is further required to replant, even though the particular trees to be felled should be of a kind that will reproduce themselves from stools.

Take the case of a small stud farm on the Curragh, of some 80 Statute acres, on which there are some three or four acres of old beech groves, now getting past their best. A local factory wished to buy a few tons; the owner wanted the land for grass, but has been refused a permit. It is difficult to see who benefits by this foolish legislation, which only serves to bring the law into ridicule.
—Yours, etc.,
ST. ALBANS.

FRUITFUL TOMATO

A truss of tomatoes with 46 fruit is growing on a plant in the greenhouse of Mr. George Squire, Royal avenue, Dun Laoghaire. This growth is described as "phenomenal," and members of the trade stated yesterday that they had never before heard of so large a number of tomatoes on one truss.

The plant is a Stoner's Gradewell, specially selected by the nurserymen from whom Mr. Squire bought it. The seed was the product of a plant imported from Hampshire. On the truss there were originally no less than 73 flowers, but only 46 of them bore fruit. The fruit are of various sizes, the largest being normal sized and of good shape.

Mr. Squire told an Irish Times reporter that he had not fed the plant in any special way. It had got some fertiliser, and was bedded in the normal type of loamy mixture. Some of the other plants in the greenhouse have trusses with up to 36 fruit.

OLD CASTLE STONES

Recent statements published in the Irish Times that stones from old castles in Co. Cork were being used for road-making are emphatically denied by Mr. J. T. O'Donnell, acting surveyor for the county.

In a letter Mr. O'Donnell says that a pile of old stones had been purchased for road material from a tenant on the Carrig estate. The stone was believed to have come from the walls of stable and outhouses of Carrig Castle that had been demolished.

The county road officials, Mr. O'Donnell says, have instructions not to make use of old historic buildings, cairns or other obviously ancient structures as sources of road material, and they have, in the past, helped to save such structures from demolition. They could not, however, be expected to examine the origin of every load of stones supplied to them.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles Na gCopaleen.

THE son of Pharaoh's daughter was the daughter of Pharaoh's son. Know that old one?

The Plain People of Ireland: How could that be, man? How could a man's son be his daughter at the same time?

Myself: I said the son of Pharaoh's daughter was the daughter of Pharaoh's son. It's all right, as you will see if you work it out with algebra. Let x equal the son of Pharaoh. Go further—call him Mr. X. Then what you have is Mr. X's daughter was the daughter of Mr. X, surely not an unlikely relationship in all the circumstances.

The Plain People of Ireland: Begob you're right, never thought of that, smart boy wanted.

Myself: Don't go yet. There's another way of looking at it. Call Pharaoh's daughter Mrs. Y. Then you have another story—the son of Mrs. Y was Mrs. Y's son. See it?

The Plain People of Ireland: That's one of the smartest things for a long time. You ought to put that into the paper.

Yes, the son of Pharaoh's daughter. Then the other one, your man is looking at a photo and says brothers and sister have I none but that man's father is my father's son. Who's picture is he looking at? His own. Right. Then the other one, a fiddler in Cork had a brother a fiddler in Dublin, what was the fiddler in Dublin to the fiddler in Cork? Brother? No that's wrong, you're completely out there, the right answer is sister.

Remember the last time we played these little games when we were all together? Remember the yellow lamplight, "Spot" with his torn ear, the shutters with the iron bar across them, the black kettle hanging from the old smut-furred chain in the chimney and the delicate fluted china tea-cups made in Belleek? Poor George was alive then and Annie was only a little girl, little thinking she was soon to marry. That was over twenty-one years ago, in Newcastle West, where daddy's column of the Black and Tans was stationed. Dear old dead days, gone beyond recall.

An Appeal to Gas Consumers

Because of the many enquiries received from consumers who depend upon gas for lighting, the Company wishes to point out, in good time, that the prospects of an extension of the hours beyond 7 p.m. are not favourable, unless greater savings are made during the day.

Economy in the use of gas is important in your own interest, because, as is generally known, conditions governing the supply have continued to worsen rather than improve. Moreover, costs have risen to such an extent that a serious increase in price will be unavoidable.

Every means of improving the position, including the use of Turf, is being adopted, BUT CO-OPERATION BY CONSUMERS IN MAKING GREATER SAVINGS IS THE SUREST WAY TO LONGER HOURS OF EVENING SUPPLY.

Watch the Company's Showroom Windows for Economy Methods.
